MARKET OVERVIEW

U.S. equities recorded positive returns in the first quarter as rates pulled back, inflation readings came in lower than expected, and the labor market and consumer spending remained healthy. The best performing benchmark sectors were Information Technology, Communication Services, and Consumer Discretionary. The worst performing sectors for the index were Financials, Energy, and Health Care. The Large Cap Focused Equity strategy outperformed the S&P 500 Index during the quarter.

STRATEGY ACTIVITY

During the quarter, the strategy added Stanley Black & Decker to the portfolio. The cash position ended the quarter at 4.1%.

As the quarter came to a close, the strategy had an overweight in the Communication Services, Health Care, Financials, and Industrials sectors and an underweight in the Consumer Staples, Consumer Discretionary, Real Estate, Materials, Energy, and Information Technology sectors. The strategy held no positions in the Utilities sector.

The sectors where strategy holdings outperformed the most relative to the benchmark were Communication Services, Consumer Discretionary, and Energy. Sectors that lagged the most relative to the benchmark include Real Estate, Information Technology, and Health Care. Stock selection contributed 36 basis points to performance for the period. Sector allocation contributed 62 basis points during the quarter primarily due to an overweight in Communication Services and no weight in Utilities.

Three stocks that contributed the most to performance included an American multinational technology conglomerate, an American cloud-based software company, and an online vacation rental company. Stocks that detracted the most from performance were a multinational healthcare and insurance company, a leading medical device, pharmaceutical, and consumer packaged goods company, and an American financial services holding company.

Investments made in international companies, which comprised 0.7% of assets, outperformed the benchmark.

OUTLOOK

During the first quarter, the U.S. equity market continued to rebound from the 2022 downturn. Despite lingering recession risk and two large bank failures during the quarter, the equity market rallied as interest rates pulled back and inflation climbed less than expected. The S&P 500 Index ended the quarter with a 7.5% return. Investors are now debating whether this is a sustainable market transition or simply another bear market rally. In our view, much of last year's tightening has not been digested by the real economy. Soft landings are typically preceded by the easing of lending standards while hard landings are preceded by the tightening of lending standards. We believe bank lending standards will continue to tighten. Fed expectations changed significantly over the first quarter, but the inflation data complicates near-term decision making for the Fed. Therefore, the path for a soft landing remains narrow, and we continue to see indications of the slowdown we thought was likely in the back half of 2022 and into 2023 mainly due to the lag effects of higher interest rates and higher prices. The labor market and consumer spending have been resilient due to elevated pandemic savings, but with sustained tight financial conditions, we see additional downside risk to growth.

Based on our outlook, we have been gradually de-risking the portfolio for a while. Last year, for example, we sold one of the two recently failed banks (Signature Bank) due to our concerns about its performance in a de-risking market resulting from higher interest rates. In addition, we have moved the portfolios into higher return on capital and higher barrier to entry businesses with pricing power, increased our defensive exposure, and increased our cash position. We believe this conservative risk posture will benefit the portfolio going forward.

Composite inception and creation date: 10/01/13. [1]2013 returns are partial-year returns, reflecting the composite inception date of 10/01/13. [2]The 3-Year annualized ex-post standard deviation is calculated using monthly gross-of-fee returns to measure the average deviations of returns from its mean. [3]Dispersion is not calculated for years in which the composite contains five portfolios or less. Dispersion is calculated as the equal weighted standard deviation of gross-of-fee returns for those portfolios held in the composite during the entire period. The benchmark for this composite is the Standard and Poor's 500 Index. Past performance is not indicative of future results.

The Fort Washington Large Cap Focused Equity strategy is a large-cap concentrated, value oriented strategy that invests in businesses with a market capitalization greater than $5 billion. The strategy invests in businesses with strong barriers to entry that have the capability of generating excess returns on capital. The strategy looks to take advantage of irrational human behavior by buying large cap securities that have been mispriced by the market. We will invest in companies that have limited absolute downside and large margin of safety on the upside. The objective of the Large Cap Focused Equity strategy is to outperform the S&P 500 Index over a full market cycle. All fee-paying, fully discretionary portfolios managed in the Large Cap Focused Equity style, with a minimum of $3 million under our management, are included in this composite. Effective 10/26/18, the Large Cap Focused Equity strategy fee schedule is as follows: 0.55% on the first $25 million, 0.45% on the next $25 million, and 0.40% on additional amounts over $50 million. The benchmark for this composite is the Standard and Poor's 500 Index. Portfolios in this composite include cash, cash equivalents, investment securities, interest and dividends. Cash is maintained, within each separately managed account segment, in accordance with our asset allocation ratio. The U.S. dollar is the base currency. The specific securities identified and described do not represent all of the securities purchased, sold, or recommended. Returns are presented gross and net of management fees and include the reinvestment of all income. Gross returns will be reduced by investment advisory fees and other expenses that may be incurred in the management of the account. Net of fee performance was calculated using the actual management fees charged. Individual portfolio returns are calculated on a daily valuation basis. RISK DISCLOSURES

Fort Washington's Large Cap Focused Equity strategy invests in stocks of large-cap companies, which may be unable to respond quickly to new competitive challenges. The strategy invests in preferred stocks, which are relegated below bonds for payment should the issuer be liquidated. If interest rates rise, the fixed dividend on preferred stocks may be less attractive, causing their price to decline. The strategy may focus its investments in specific sectors and therefore is subject to the risk that adverse circumstances will have greater impact on the fund than on the fund that does not do so. The strategy is non-diversified, which means that it may invest a greater percentage of its assets in the securities of a limited number of issuers and may be subject to greater risks.
